WILL TRY FOR THREE MILLION CAPITAL FUND

Northfield Schools Trustees Will Launch Appeal to the Public For Permanent Endowment

An effort to secure a permanent capital fund of $3,000,000 was decided upon Saturday afternoon at the semi-annual meeting of the board of trustees of the Northfield Schools. Three of the trustees offered to bear the expense of the campaign if the board would launch an appeal to the public for such a fund, and the offer was accepted and a campaign committee appointed, consisting of John L. Grandin of Boston, chairman; Stephen Baker of New York, Wilfred W. Fry of Philadelphia, P. S. Beveridge of Hartford, Conn., and President Elliott Speer of Northfield.

We are in urgent need," said said Chairman Grandin, "of funds to enable us to raise the salaries of our teachers and to provide a permanent teachers' pension fund. Then, too, the time has come to fund a portion of our operating deficit. We are obliged to spend too much energy each year to raising current funds. I am sure our friends all over the nation and the general friends of education will welcome the opportunity to create a permanent fund that will enable these important schools to maintain the high quality of their teaching in the face of increasing costs, and that will give greater security and promise for the future. Even after the full $3,000,000 capital fund is secured, we will still need to raise a considerable sum each year for current expenses, so this seems the minimum we should undertake."

Besides Chairman Grandin, the trustees present Saturday afternoon were: Edwin M. Bulkeley, treasurer, of New York; J. Stewart Baker of New York; Arthur Perry and Arthur Perry, Jr., of Boston; Dean Luther A. Weigle of New Haven, Conn.; Richard M. Smith of Boston; Thomas J. Foster of New York; Jarvis Cromwell of New York; Miss Lucy Curtis of Bridgeport, Conn.; Miss Mira Wilson, principal of Northfield Seminary, and Dr. Henry F. Cutler, principal of Mount Hermon School.

All Odd Fellows are welcome.

After the annual meeting of the Alumni association, which took place at 2 o'clock in the lecture room, Silliman laboratory, the counsellors played golf on the course at Hotel Northfield, where they were the guests of Mr. Ambert G. Moody for the afternoon.

The annual meeting of the Alumni association was held at 2 p. m. In the report of the Alumni secretary for the year ending July 31, 1929, attention was called to some of the more tangible features of the Alumni work, namely: the D. L. Moody Living Endowment, raised annually by the alumni, which this year amounted to $28,258.15, and which is turned over to the school for current expenses; the Elizabeth Conway Library fund, appropriated for money raised by the alumni which has, since 1903, provided for the purchase of over 3000 volumes. This fund has been the main source of income for buying reference books for the school library. The Alumni association has also given annually the prizes for the inter-society alumni cup debates. Special mention was made in the secretary's report of the services of Frank S. Beveridge, '04, of Hartford, who acted as national chairman of the D. L. Moody living endowment, and of Henry R. Huntington, '88, of Springfield, for his gifts to the Schauflier Memorial library.

At the meeting of the Mount Hermon Alumni Association Saturday afternoon, Oct. 5, four new members were elected to the board of alumni counsellors: Ernest A. #### Seminary Student's Aid Society Annual Meeting

Northfield Seminary Student Aid Society held its annual meeting at the Northfield hotel, with Miss Elizabeth Billings of New York presiding. Mrs. Ambert G. Moody gave the secretary's report, which showed that over $5000 is loaned each year to girl students needing financial aid to continue at the seminary. This semester $1500 had been loaned to 35 students, but the semester calls for aid are much heavier. These are not the only students who require aid. Many work extra time daily, for which they are paid, and others earn scholarships.

Principal Myra Wilson spoke on the value of student aid as a method of helping students. Miss Mabel M. Cooper, head of the Gould hall, gave instances of what student aid had meant to individual girls. As the girls graduate and become earners, nearly all repay the society the money they had received.

At 4:30 p. m. a meeting of the six directors, who have the power of granting loans, convened at the hotel. Previous to the evening session, five seminary students rendered a musical program.

Come and see the opening performance and you will be there the three nights. Program changes each night.

NORTHFIELD HIGH SCHOOL NEWS AND NOTES

On Monday, Sept. 30, were made known the results of the drive for subscription to Curtis publications. The Green Eagles, led by Elsie Havercroft and Elizabeth Eastman, succeeded in obtaining 57 new subscriptions or renewals for the three magazines, The Ladies Home Journal, The Saturday Evening Post, and The Country Gentleman; the less successful Red Hawks, captained by Ralph Miller and Glenn Smith, obtained 34. Since the total number of subscriptions obtained more than equals the total number of pupils enrolled, the school is placing in an extra bonus of 10 cents on each subscription. The proceeds from the drive are to be divided equally between the senior class for its trip to Washington and the school at large for athletic equipment. Awards gained by individuals who obtained a considerable number of subscriptions will be presented at the Friday afternoon assembly period this week. Charles L. Lomard, Alfred Labelle and Laura Marchand, each of whom secured 10 or more subscriptions, will receive certificates of salesmanship from the Curtis Publishing Company.

Belong to the Meriao

Northfield high school is one of the group of schools whose pupils of high academic standing belong to Pro Merito, a widespread high school honor society. An average of 85 or over in all studies is required for membership, and active membership is limited to senior year. Northfield's members for this year are Stith Field, Ruth French, Charlotte Lomard and Polly Parker. The following underclassmen have records thus far high enough to make them eligible for membership: James Douglas Barton, Elizabeth Eastman, Catherine Gray, Marion Wells, Sopomores, Mary Breunig, Mary Podolski, Grace Randall, Estner Szczyroa, Helen Szeszowski, Minnie Szeszowski, Louise Tenney and Lucine Woodbury.

Friday Afternoon Assembly

The Friday afternoon assembly period on Oct. 4 was given to a consideration of the part played in American history by John Paul Jones. In late September came the anniversary of Jones' remarkable victory over the Serapis, which occasion made the program particularly timely. The period opened with the Singing of America the Beautiful, by the school, followed with the flag salute. An account of Jones' life and deeds was given by Miss Lawley, after which an appropriate poem was read by Ruth French.

Annual Hot Dog Roast

Later in the season than usual, but no less enjoyable, was the annual hot dog roast given last Saturday evening by the Senior class to the rest of the school. After assembling at 4:30 at the East Northfield post office, the entire group proceeded to Cathedral Pines, where a business-like bonfire had already been laid. To occupy the time until it became dark enough for the fire to be effective, games and races of various sorts were run off, under the direction of June Wright. Appropriate prizes were awarded to the swiftest runners, the best potato-balancer and other outstanding athletes. This activity served as an excellent appetizer for the feed of hot dogs (unlimited) and marshmallows toasted over the coals. Incapacitated by food, the group broke up at an early hour, after singing the school song. The seniors received many compliments on their well planned and enjoyable picnic.

Marriage of Annie Bennett Conley to H. L. Dickenson

Northfield National Bank To Pay 5% on Savings

An important announcement was made last Tuesday evening by the directors of the Northfield National Bank, when it was decided to place the savings department upon a five per cent basis per annum, compounded January and July, effective on all accounts from October 1. Interest begins on deposited funds the first day of the month following its deposit, unless deposited within the three first days of the month. The bank has been successful in every way and its growth has been steady and substantial. With approximately about 600 accounts opened and a satisfactory investment record, the board of directors felt that the bank should take its place in the forefront of banking institutions and give to its depositors in the savings department the largest return possible under prevailing conditions.

Delicious Quick Breads In A Jiffy!

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heinz Company

ONE need not be an experienced cook to serve those delicious hot breads which require little time in preparation and which add so much to any meal, be it breakfast, luncheon or supper. The difficulties of making biscuits and muffins have been over-estimated. If one is equipped with a standard measuring cup and a reliable oven, and is willing to follow directions from a good recipe—biscuit or muffin making is not a matter of luck. Good results may be expected every time.

Thoroughly master one good recipe for muffins and one for biscuits! Memorize the proportions, and then you need not take any time out when you are hurrying to make muffins for breakfast! The standard recipe later may be varied to suit your individual wishes.

Following are several recipes for delicious quickbreads:

Plain Baking Powder Biscuit—
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons lard or butter
1 cup milk and water in equal parts

Mix dry ingredients and sift twice. Work in fat with fingers; add needed liquid gradually, mixing with knife to a soft dough. Pat and roll lightly to one-half inch thickness on floured board. Shape with a biscuit cutter. Place on buttered pan and bake in moderate oven 12 to 15 minutes.

Plain Muffins—
3 tablespoons butter (level)
3 tablespoons sugar (level)
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 cup milk
2 cups bread flour
4 teaspoons baking powder

Cream butter; add sugar gradually and egg well-beaten; sift baking powder with flour, add to the first mixture, alternating with milk. Bake in buttered gem pans 25 minutes.

Mince-meat Rolls—Pat baking powder biscuit dough to ½ inch in thickness. Spread with mince-meat and roll as for jelly roll. Cut into one-inch lengths—pinch one end of each roll together and place that end down on the baking sheet. This prevents the escape of any mince-meat while baking. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) for 15 minutes.

Jam Rolls—Follow directions for mince-meat roll—spreading the dough thinly with strawberry or cherry preserves, and then cutting and baking as before.

Devilled Biscuit—Pat biscuit dough very thin (about ¼ inch) and shape with biscuit cutter. Spread with thin layer of devilled ham, cover with another biscuit and bake in a moderate oven 12 to 15 minutes. These rolls are delicious served for luncheon with vegetable salad—such as tomato, lettuce, asparagus or other similar salads.

Devilled Ham—Grind thoroughly in a food chopper, 1 cup cold cooked ham; add ¼ cup chopped stuffed olives, 1 tablespoon mayonnaise and ½ teaspoon prepared mustard.

Jelly Muffins—Fill well greased muffin pans ¾ full of muffin batter. In the center of each muffin place one teaspoon of current or grape jelly, forcing it well into the center of the muffin with the teaspoon. Bake in a moderate oven for 20 to 25 minutes.

Colrain

Mrs. Albert Herzog has secured a high place among the busiest canners of the county, for she has canned 400 quarts of fruit and vegetables to date, including pears, peaches, quinces, blueberries, blackberries, raspberries, strawberries, green beans, carrots, beets, string beans, sweet corn, peas, shell beans, seven kinds of pickle and also various kinds of jams and jellies.

The union services of the three Methodist churches in Colrain in recognition of Rally Day were well attended. The singing by the union choir, as well as the duets and trios were well rendered and much enjoyed. It seemed appropriate to meet in Memorial hall, where the memory of the friends of past days were brought vividly to mind by the photographs, medals and flags of Civil War days, displayed about the hall.

The coming of Dr. Leopold A. Nies of Springfield, district superintendent, was much appreciated, as also was the health story by Miss Mildred Woodard, Colrain district nurse. The lunch hour brought a fine feeling of friendly informality and was an enjoyable part of the program. It is probable that the Rally Day will become an annual affair in the general activities of the church life. The two addresses of the afternoon were given by Rev. Ambler Garnett of Greenfield and Rev. Reginald Nichols of Shelburne Falls.

GLAD TIDINGS

"My folks will be proud to get this letter."
"Why is that?"
"They thought I'd have a hard time getting a job and here I've had six already this month."

"Please ma'am, may we borrow your phonograph?"
"Do you want to dance?"
"No, we wanta sleep."

Editorial

OUR OLD WARTIME BUDDIE IS ONCE AGAIN RIGHT WITH US IN THIS ILLITERACY THING. HURRAH!

So far it has been the ladies who have rallied round us in regard to the illiteracy question. Several of them have actually offered to assist in the establishing of "moonlight schools" and Wilder Buell, the author of "The Other Side of Main Street", called our attention to the National Illiteracy Crusade and now we have a letter from Cora Wilson Stewart, the director of this organization, whose slogan is "To Wipe Out Illiteracy by 1930", dated from the American Red Cross Building, Washington, D. C., and reading, in part, as follows:

"Your editorial was truly heartening. If we could have a similar one in every paper in the United States this autumn, how greatly it would help."

"I trust that somebody has answered your challenge. You have made it clear that illiteracy is to be found there. The County of Franklin, in which Northfield is located, had 1,516 illiterates according to the last Federal census. That is a larger number than we had in Rowan, a mountain county in Kentucky, where Moonlight Schools were first established, so there is evidently a fine field there for work."

Here is another source of supply for both expert suggestion and actual assistance, in addition to the Metropolitan Insurance Company, for reducing the number of illiterates in our community and county to be tabulated in the 1930 census. The president of the National Illiteracy Crusade is John H. Finley; vice presidents: Jane Adams and Glenn Frank, and on the lengthy list of the board of directors, including governors, senators and many well-known progressive men and women, we note with delight the name of Arthur H. Chamberlain. We were buddies together in the Educational Corps of the Army, both in the A. E. F. and in the Army of Occupation in Germany, and we want to tell both the cock-eyed and the illiterate world, as well, that anything that Arthur H. Chamberlain is associated with is mighty apt to go over with a bang. And that's that. Cheerio!

ONE OF THE SEVERAL THOUSAND NEEDED REFORMS

Among the few thousand little things we want to see put right (or changed over, if you will) before we leave the keys of our typewriter to another, is a Calendar Reform. We are glad to note that sentiment in these United States appears to be in favor of this, according to a report of the National Committee on Calendar Simplification.

This committee has just concluded a year's investigation of this subject and out of 1433 organizations which replied to the question regarding a new calendar, 1,154 favored a modification of the present system. Inasmuch as this is more than 80 per cent in favor of a change, it would seem that there is no considerable opposition to calendar reform.

On the present calendar there are 12 months, varying in length from 28 to 31 days. Any particular day of any month differs each year in the day of the week upon which it will fall. The proposed change is to have a calendar of 13 months, each 28 days, which would take 364 days and would leave an extra day. This day would be placed at the end of the calendar as an additional holiday.

Under this plan, the first day of every month would be Sunday and the last day would be Saturday, so that it would be comparatively simple to keep straight the days of the week any special date would fall.

The idea is to have the world adopt this calendar generally, so as to do away with the present confusion due to the fact that so many different calendars are in use in different parts of the world. The American committee has been acting in co-operation with a committee of the League of Nations. In this way it is hoped that a changed calendar can be agreed upon and put in use throughout the entire world.

COMMUNICATIONS

Another Meaty Letter From A "Northfieldian"

Editor, Northfield Press:

"Northfield—where is it?" a young minister asked me after I had made known to him the name of my home town.

"On the Connecticut river, about 12 miles north of Greenfield, Massachusetts," I answered.

"Greenfield, the name sounds familiar, but I do not just place it."

"Have you not heard of the Moody schools, they are located in and near Northfield?" I ventured as my last attempt to place Northfield geographically in his mind.

"Oh, surely, now I know where it is. Some friends of mine used to attend the Religious Conferences that are connected with the schools, and they would come back seething with enthusiasm about the place. We used to get them to give short talks concerning their trips, and they always spent as much time talking about the beautiful village and the surrounding terrain as they did talking about the different meetings they attended. You certainly are lucky to be living in such a place. I suppose you hear quite a number of the Conference lectures?"

"No, not as many as you would expect, considering my interest in such things. You know a Gothamite never visits the Statue of Liberty."

"Yes, I realize that, and I suppose the townspeople take more pride in their own town and its beautiful serenity than they do in the work that D. L. Moody's disciples are carrying on. In a way, I think they should, because they must keep their town so that it will always be a suitable background for those who are trying to further God's Kingdom there in Northfield. I remember hearing about the campus of the Seminary and about the wooded hills interlaced with by-paths, but my friends used to say that all of that would be commonplace if it were not for the local color that the town gives to the place. In fact, if I remember rightly, most of the post cards I received from them were views of the Main street, flanked on either side by lofty elms, through which could be seen colonial houses surrounded by broad lawns. No, sir, I do not blame you for not attending the meetings, you are doing your part if you help keep up the traditions of the town. There are thousands of places here in our cities where people could gather to hear and learn about the Word of God, but it is only in the quietude of a spot like Northfield that one can carry out advantageously the work of D. L. Moody."

And thus another person gives his opinion of the place we all love so well. Not so much, maybe, while we are there; but it is the impression that stays in our minds that counts. Although this man has not been there, he has caught the true spirit of the place and is thankful for the town and it is—not as it could be if—He realizes that there is more than one iron in the fire—one to spur on the work of the great evangelist and the other to keep the home fires burning.

May these two irons become welded into a true emblem of co-operation.
"A NORTHFIELDIAN."

"Shorthand Made Most Legible" Is Heartily Commended

We are glad to hear that "Shorthand, made most legible for personal or general use," by Charles Chambers Conner, published by Phelps Publishing Co., Springfield, is steadily gaining in sales and circulation.

The author, our fellow townsman, has always been interested in phonography, learning first the Ben Pitman system and afterward the Munson. As the years have gone by he has evolved his own system, based, of course, upon both of the foregoing systems, but so far as we can determine, vastly improved and simplified.

This seems to us a distinct service to humanity . . . for one to pass on the results of many years of labor and experience, so that others may benefit. And so we want to heartily recommend this book to those who are interested in shorthand. The price of the book is $1.50, and there is a liberal discount for quantity orders. Application for it may be made to the author, C. C. Conner, East Northfield, Mass., as well as the publishers at Springfield.

Turners Falls

David Kilgore to Attend
Louisville Congress

Turners Falls will be represented at the Sixteenth National Recreation Congress in Louisville, Oct. 14-19, by Director of Recreation David B. Kilgore.

This conference, held under the auspices of the Playground and Recreation Association of America, will bring together some 600 men and women recreation directors, educators, physical directors, park superintendents and others interested in the progress of public recreation. Leadership is the main theme of the conference.

There has been an enormous outlay in recent years for parks, playgrounds, athletic fields, swimming pools and other recreation facilities. It is pointed out in the call to the conference by Joseph Lee of Boston, "father of the playground movement in America," and president of the association. "Public recreation has also developed into a special profession," he states. "However, it is timely that more attention be given to the nature and limitations of leadership in the play and recreation of children and youth, and it is to the various aspects of this theme that the congress will give its principal attention."

George W. Starbuck Passed Away Last Sunday

George W. Starbuck, 47, one of the town's most prominent residents, died at 7:30 Sunday morning at the Farren Memorial hospital, where he underwent an operation. His death came as a shock, since his condition was considered satisfactory until late Saturday night.

Mr. Starbuck was born in this town, the son of George and Elizabeth (Holmes) Starbuck. He was educated in the public schools and became a partner in the plumbing business of his father and brother.

Mr. Starbuck was prominent in fraternal life and was president of the Board of Trade at the time of his most untimely death. He was a member of Mechanics Lodge of Masons, the Square and Compass Club, Valley Lodge of Odd Fellows, Valley Queer Rebekah Lodge, Greenfield Lodge of Elks, the Schutzkompat Club, Turners Falls Schutzen Verein and Athletic Association.

Mr. Starbuck is survived by his wife, Fannie, and a son, William, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Starbuck, a brother, Joseph N. Starbuck, all of this town, and a sister, Dr. Amber A. Starbuck, of Springfield.

Dr. Alfred Free

Many local people were saddened to learn of the death of Dr. Alfred Free, a former resident of this town, who died at his home in Winchendon. Dr. Free was a former pastor of the local Unitarian church for many years and was also interested in all civic affairs of the town. For several years he served as a member of the school committee, most of the time as its chairman.

Dr. Free was born in Lagrange, N. Y., on April 2, 1849, and was a graduate of Hamilton University, N. Y. He was a well known mineralogist and as a young man devoted some time to this work. He had traveled extensively in many foreign countries and was an expert on rare gems. As a minister, Dr. Free was regarded as one of the most prominent in this section. While here he made many friends among all races and creeds, and was a large factor in the civic affairs of the town. He had always retained his interests here and made frequent visits to the town. The funeral was held on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Church of the Unity, where he had been pastor for the past 20 years, and of which he was pastor emeritus at the time of his death. The services were conducted by Prof. Charles H. Patterson of Amherst, a life-long friend, who was assisted by Rev. Elbridge Stoneham, pastor of the church. Burial was in the Riverside cemetery, Winchendon.

Following roll-call, the trucks and apparatus will be tried out at the high school, and there will also be various contests between the four companies of the department. A dinner will be served at the Harguari hall the same evening at 8 o'clock, and Chief Andrew T. Doran has secured Sande Chapman as one of the speakers. Town officials and others will be invited to this affair.

"Fire Prevention Week"

Fire Chief Donald E. Mathewson wishes to call the attention of the citizens of Millers Falls to the fact that the Governor of the Commonwealth has set aside this week as "Fire Prevention Week," and asks the aid of every person in town to help reduce the waste by fire. The chief suggests that every householder see to it that all rubbish is cleaned up and taken away from the premises, and above all, do not put hot ashes in wooden receptacles. At this time of the year it would be a good plan to clean out the chimney flues. When using gasoline for cleaning, the work should be done out of doors, and kerosene should not be used to start any fire. He advises that matches be kept in a metal box in a place where children will not have access to them. The ratio of fires in this town is very low, and with the help of every citizen it can be kept in this same class.

Whist and dancing, and both vocal and instrumental music were enjoyed throughout the evening. Walter L. Niles, Jr., of Malden, in behalf of the assembled guests, presented Mr. and Mrs. Pomeroy with a beautiful rocker, floor lamp and other gifts, to which both Mr. and Mrs. Pomeroy responded with speeches of acceptance. During the evening a bountiful luncheon was served, under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Towne, Mrs. Nelson Spring, Mrs. Frederick Comins and Mrs. James Browning. Several of those present witnessed the wedding ceremony 25 years ago. Guests were present from Newton Center, Malden, Greenfield and Millers Falls.

Recipes for the Bachelor Girl

THE bachelor girl who likes to cook her own meals and occasionally have a guest has difficulties confronting her which may be summed up in the phrase: How to buy little enough food to avoid waste.

But several agencies have combined to help her. Cannery put out fruits and vegetables in eight-ounce cans which hold a cup and cost ten cents. Evaporated milk solves her milk problem, for it obviates the nuisance of attending to milk bottles and milk tickets and the problem of storing milk. Evaporated milk will keep well after being opened, if it is not all used at once, and the unopened cans can stand on the kitchen shelf ready at all times for use.

Recipes for Two

Some recipes which serve two and include this time-saving milk are:

Stuffed Tomatoes: Cut off stem and remove pulp of two large tomaatoes. Mix two tablespoons chopped, canned okra with one tablespoon bread crumbs and season with salt and pepper. Fill tomatoes with mixture. Bake in a hot oven (450°) for fifteen minutes, then reduce heat to medium, 350°, for fifteen minutes. Make a cheese sauce by melting one tablespoon butter in a pan; add three tablespoons grated cheese and heat slowly until melted. Add one-fourth cup evaporated milk and heat until well blended. Pour over tomatoes and serve.

Salmon Patties: Remove bones and skin from a half-pound can of salmon. Add one and one-half teaspoons lemon juice, cayenne pepper, one-half teaspoon salt, one egg, one-half cup bread crumbs, one-fourth teaspoon baking powder and one-fourth cup evaporated milk diluted with one-fourth cup water. Mold into four patties. Place on an oiled tin and bake in a hot oven (425° F.) for five minutes, then reduce heat to 375° until browned.

Office of the
BOARD OF SELECTMEN
Northfield, Mass.

You are hereby required, on or before Dec. 1, 1929, to destroy the gypsy and brown tail moths on your property in this town.

This notification is in accordance with Chapter 132, General Laws, which requires cities and towns to destroy the eggs, caterpillars, pupae and nests of the gypsy and brown tail moths under heavy penalty for failure to comply with the provisions of the law.

If a property owner fails to destroy such eggs, caterpillars, pupae and nests, then the city or town is required to destroy the same and the cost of the work, in whole or in part, according to the value of the land, is assessed upon and becomes a lien on the land. (Section 18, Chapter 132, General Laws, on reverse.)

The Selectmen ask owners and tenants to co-operate with the town in its work on highways and other public grounds by doing effective work on their premises. Citizens who have cleaned their premises of the moths, but find their trees endangered by the neglect of owners of adjoining estates, should make complaint to the Selectmen. The infestation of a residential neighborhood by the neglect of a few will not be tolerated.

The eggs of the gypsy moth should be destroyed at once with cresote. They should never be scraped off the object on which they are laid. Careful search should be made for gypsy moth egg clusters, not only on trees, but also on house walls, stone walls, fences and in rubbish heaps, etc. Trees in which cavities occur and which it is not desirable to cut should have the cavities tinned or cemented. This is important. The present and future cost of combating this insect can be greatly reduced by cutting and burning worthless brush, hollow trees, etc. A few trees well-cared for are more valuable to the property owner and the community than a large number of neglected trees.

The nests of the brown tail moth should be cut from the trees, carefully collected and burned in a stove or furnace.

Full instructions as to the best methods of work against the moths may be obtained from the Local Superintendent, Rodrick Parker, or from the State Forester, Room 519, State House, Boston, Mass.

Work done by contractors should be inspected and approved by Local Superintendent before payment for the same is made.

F. H. MONTAGUE,
C. A. PARKER,
G. W. CARR,

BRATTLEBORO STORES OPEN ON Columbus Day, Saturday.

Inasmuch as Columbus Day is observed as a holiday in Massachusetts and not in Vermont, it seems proper for the Brattleboro Chamber of Commerce to remind Massachusetts neighbors that we would be glad to welcome them on a holiday visit to Vermont. Why not make this "discovery day" a pilgrimage of discovery in Southern Vermont?

The autumnal foliage is at its best in the mountains now, with the red and yellow of the maples contrasting sharply with the bronze of the oaks and the dark evergreens.

Come to see the better roads Vermont is building, and come to shop in Brattleboro stores. You will find them open for the entire holiday. A shopping tour in another town is always an agreeable change, affording you opportunity to compare prices and quality of merchandise.

We extend this invitation cordially in behalf of Brattleboro stores, hotels, theatres and restaurants, which want not only to win your dollar but your lasting satisfaction, so that you may want to come again, and often.

By WILDER BUELL

STRANGE INTERLUDE, by Eugene O'Neill, Boni & Liveright, pages 352.

The Chief of Police of Boston is a profoundly comic character. Some artist of the school of the humorists should put him in a book. Within the last few years he has thrown out of Boston the work of six or eight of the most important and significant of the modern literary artists on the ground that he was protecting the people of that great city from moral contamination. At the same time hundreds of books, magazine stories and plays that are far more suggestive to the ordinary mind have been allowed to continue undisturbed. It would almost seem that the eminent political gentleman had a grudge against the arts as art. It is becoming a mark of honor and superiority in intellectual circles to be thrown out of the "Athens of America."

But, of course, no man of any importance at all can be quite as stupid as the Chief of Police of Boston seems. He has an idea, a principle, upon which he is conducting his censorship. And, after following this situation for several years, I think I see what it is. What the Chief of Police objects to is not immorality, but the mention of birth control. Any play or book that suggests that there may be circumstances in the lives of kindly and decent people when the birth of a child can and should be prevented, is promptly put under the ban of the Boston censorship without appeal. That is all there is to it. The whole question of a censorship of the arts is too complicated to discuss here. But it is well to bear in mind, in reading the front page discussions over the suppression of "Strange Interlude," that that is what all the excitement is about.

For Eugene O'Neill is not immoral. In the most profound sense, he is highly moral. For, better than any writer now producing work before the public, he has grasped the profound tragedy of sex. He is infinitely sorry for women. And I believe that every woman will agree that the one unforgivable immorality is to make the subject of sex and of birth a topic for a joke.

Mr. O'Neill goes, if anything, to the other extreme. He is a great writer, a genius of the first rank, but he is entirely devoid of the least glimmer of humor. And the result is to cripple his power to depict life in the round.

His tragic situations are brilliantly conceived. There are lines in all his plays that are moving and profound. His philosophy of life is sound so far as it goes. But he is so consistently tragic that he falsifies life. His plays are depressing rather than stimulating. Unlike Shakespeare, for instance, he fails to show that there is another side to the picture, and thus point up the tragedy.

"Strange Interlude" illustrates this point. Mr. O'Neill has conceived a brilliant idea. He has taken an old theme, the story of the man who finds a satisfactory life in the love of several women. It is a situation that has been used over and over again for centuries. But Mr. O'Neill has reversed the sexes. This is the story of a woman who, after her life has been completely wrecked by the catastrophe of the war, proceeds to build it again with the help of three men. By the end of the sixth act she has surmounted almost incredible difficulties and has got her life neatly arranged, with each man playing his suitable role, without harm either to herself or them. It is a brilliant study of the spirited handling of a difficult situation.

But Mr. O'Neill does not close the play at the end of the sixth act, which is, in my opinion, the logical end. He tacks on three more acts, apparently as a sop to the moralities, in which he shows the heroine, who has by this time won the sympathies of the audience, suffering retribution of the most conventional and banal kind. Those last three acts are bad art and false to life. It is a pity. For without them "Strange Interlude" would be a classic of irony, a comment on life of the most amusing kind, a realistic study in the idea of the single standard of morality brought to its logical conclusion. And that is a legitimate subject for art, whatever the Chief of Police of Boston may think or do about it.

To add to your pleasure, a low evening rate is in effect from seven to eight-thirty. On calls by number at distances above forty miles, the rates are about one quarter less than normal day rates.

Traffic records show that a greater percentage of calls can be completed promptly in the period from seven to eight-thirty than at any other time in the evening.

The Enjoyment of Electricity in Your Home Is Measured by its Points of Availability

Electricity is at your command, ready to serve you in a hundred different ways in the home, but its use is limited to the number of points at which it is available.

You could enjoy Electricity in your home if it was available only at a single point—and even then it would be worth the little it costs—but with the possibility of having it available at convenient points all over the house, it instantly becomes a hundred times more valuable, ready to serve you at every turn.

A few extra outlets in the Living Room will provide good reading lights just where you want them; with an extra outlet in the dining room, you can do all your breakfast and Sunday night supper cooking right on the table; an outlet in your chamber will give you a handy bed light, and another in the bathroom for your Electric Radiator will enable you to dress in the glowing warmth of its golden rays.

and at these same outlets you can attach your Vacuum Cleaner and suck up all the dust and dirt instead of scattering it with a broom.

During October the Electrical Contractors will install Convenience Outlets at Special Prices.

MANY MORE PEOPLE DIE FROM HEATSTROKE THAN OF EXPOSURE TO THE COLD, INSTITUTE FINDS

Heating Plant Now Used to Circulate Cool Air in Homes in Summer.

Summer heat is from two and a half to five times as deadly to humans as winter cold. Yet, although 7 cents of every home building dollar is spent for heating equipment, the Holland Institute of Thermology of Holland, Mich., points out that home cooling plants are rare, although modern science has made them entirely practical.

According to the latest figures of the United States Public Health Service, 646 persons died from heatstroke and only 246 as a result of exposure to cold in one year. In the preceding summer and winter 1,355 were killed by heat and 239 by cold. The statistics do not account for the vast number of non-fatal heat prostrations.

But though the cooling of theaters, auditoriums, schools, hospitals, banks, factories, offices and other structures has become common practice, air-conditioning the home for comfort, health and efficiency is neglected except for heating during cold weather. This would not be the case, the Holland Institute of Thermology suggests, if the average home owner would just "take a tip" from a common experience.

Moving Air Has Cooling Effect.

This experience occurs on hot "muggy" evenings when not a breath of wind is afloat and there seems nothing to do but perspire and suffer. In desperation, we get into the family car, start off at about 25 miles an hour, and feel the air eddy past with a grateful coolness. Presently, the speedometer slides up to 40 miles. We stop perspiring, forget the heat, become comfortable. After an hour or two we return home, refreshed and relaxed, ready for a sound sleep.

Think what this means. The air we rode through is of the same temperature as that of the air we found so insufferable before we started out—or virtually so. The relative humidity is the same, too. But riding through still air at 40 miles an hour is equivalent to sitting in moving air with a velocity of 3,520 feet a minute. This suggests that mere motion of the air may be used for cooling purposes. And that is exactly what science has discovered within recent years.

"Air motion makes any moderate condition feel cooler," states the technical guide book of the national society of air-conditioning engineers. And 12 years of research at the Pittsburgh laboratory of that organization and the United States Bureau of Mines has made it possible to calculate exactly what cooling effect any velocity of air motion will have in any condition of temperature and humidity.

Equivalent to Temperature Drop.

The facts are made use of in all sorts of industrial air-conditioning problems. As a matter of fact, engineers know four ways to cool the air in buildings. The first is to take heat directly out of air by passing it through cold water or cold brine sprays, or over cold coils, or both. The second is to reduce the humidity of the air by cooling it below the dew-point, as in a dehumidifying plant. The third method is still more complicated. But the last is simplicity itself. It consists merely in keeping the air moving at a given velocity.

When it comes to cooling a steel mill or the stokehold of an oceanic liner or a metal mine, only a competent engineer can decide which of these four possible methods is best in each case. But for most of us, in our homes, the choice is narrowed down by the fact that all the first three require expensive machinery. So we have to rely on air motion.

Heating Plant Serves Double Duty.

So it is entirely logical, according to the Holland Institute of Thermology, for the warm air heating industry to apply this principle to introduce the comfort of coolness during hot weather. As a matter of fact, the leaders of this industry have converted the heating plant, which is used only for a part of the year, into a real air-conditioning plant that improves the year-round conditions in every room of the home.

After all, why not? If the heating system's job is to circulate warm air throughout the house in winter, why shouldn't it circulate cool air in summer? This has been brought about by the introduction into the vaporaire heating plant of a propeller run by a small noiseless electric power unit.

Of course, its first effect is to move the air through the house at a much higher velocity than the unaided force of gravity will move it. Whereas the ordinary warm air heating system, operating under winter conditions, changes the air in each room from one-and-a-half to two times an hour, the propeller system, operating in summer, turns over the air from four to six times an hour. And this steady and moderately rapid motion of the air results in appreciable cooling during the summer.

Tests are cited by the Holland Institute of Thermology to show that this occurs on all floors of the home.

Cooling Breezes Throughout House.

Even a considerable distance from the grille, the cooling-effect of the air motion is distinctly noticeable. On this point, the language of the official test report is graphic:

"Propeller circulation produces a well defined cooling effect which is readily recognized by bodily sensations. This circulation results in cooling and increased comfort to the occupants of the house."

"The velocity of discharge from floor grilles as shown by the tests was sufficient to carry a good share of the cooled air all the way to the ceiling, against which it splashed. In the case of several grilles, the spread at the ceiling was noticeable for some feet. The air from wall and baseboard grilles was carried well across the room before the velocity was dissipated."

The Human Body as a Radiator in Summer.

Here, then, is a practical application of air motion as a cooling method for the average home. When we are entertaining friends on a sweltering summer evening, all we need do is to turn on a switch in the kitchen and set a cooling breeze coursing through the house.

No Sleepless Nights.

When bedtime comes, we can be sure of getting to sleep easily and quickly, without tossing and sweating through half the night, because of the steady cooling currents that play over our beds. Grandmother and grandfather may sit in the air stream and so pass through the "hot spell" without those distressing attacks of heatstroke that make midsummer a dread period for old folks. And baby's cradle may be placed where the wind blows over it moderately, so that the little one, too, is free from summer illnesses due to heat.

And in contrast with elaborate evaporating and dehumidifying machinery, this summer-cooling-winter-heating plant is inexpensive, both in operating cost and in original cost of the equipment. On the first point, the engineering tests showed that the total cost of cooling a large two-story dwelling by this method amounts to slightly less than a cent an hour.

Logically, we want to know what happens to the propeller system during winter. Well, one of the outstanding effects of the increased air velocity is that the house can be warmed up on cold winter mornings much more rapidly than with an ordinary heating plant.

Also, air circulation throughout the dwelling is improved. Instead of one-and-a-half air changes an hour there are from four to six when the propeller moves air through the system. This produces more uniform and consequently more healthy temperatures in the rooms.

Easier to Heat Home, Too.

Higher heating efficiency and considerable fuel economy result, for three reasons: First, no forcing of the heater is necessary during extremely cold weather. This practice is costly of fuel and burns out parts which are expensive to replace. Second, the temperature of the whole system is lowered, the air leaving the grilles at an average of 180 to 170 degrees in an ordinary warm air system, but only 140 to 150 in the propeller system. Third, heat loss from the heater and heat pipes into the basement is decreased by about half. And finally, the propeller forces warm air to every room in the house, even those most remote from the central heating plant: It means an end to "that room that could never be kept warm."
